[Original.]

To "The Bard of the Glen."

BY J. W. WELCH.

I sat, overawed by a hideous monster,
Repulse multiform, by the children of men;
When sweet as the voice of the dove in the morning,
Arose the full notes of "The Bard of the Glen."

The strain 'woke the breathings within my sad bosom,
Of hope's winning carol which first won my pen;
And joy's golden beams threw their radiance o'er me,
Lured from Lethe's gloom by "The Bard of the Glen."

It soothed my and heart by despair overshadowed,
Whilst energy, quickened, inspired me again;
My mind caught the fervor contained in the sonnet
Which rose on the breeze from "The Bard of the Glen."

Discarded by fate and a prey to dejection,
Which palsied my powers, retarding my pen;
Oblivion's night had my race terminated,
But for the deep tones of "The Bard of the Glen."

Though censure assail with a withering tempest,
I'll dare the encounter again and again;
Buoyed up by the words of a warm kindred spirit,
This sylvan sweet-singer, "The Bard of the Glen."

May happiness sit by thy daisy-clad threshold,
And e'er smile upon thee, thou warm hearted friend;
While life lends a ray to incite me to action,
I'll never forget thee, sweet "Bard of the Glen."

The Story-Teller.

A TERRIBLE NIGHT.

AN AUTHENTIC STORY.

I am growing old, my readers, and my hair, once so dark and glossy, is now thickly threaded with silver; my eyes once bright and sparkling are now somewhat dim; and my children and grand children tell me that my memory is failing fast.

It may be so, but although I cannot always recall events that take place from day to day, I can remember, as well as if it happened yesterday, a night of terror that I once spent in the wilds of America.

It was in the year 1830 that we settled in our home in the lonely wilderness.

Ours was the only clearing for a full mile on either side, and the road to my own brother's house was merely a blazed path through a thick pine forest.

My husband had let the clearing of his fallow to an Irish family, Burke by name, consisting of six brothers, and with the exception of the two youngest, a wild fierce looking set they were.

The eldest of these men, Ulick, was a remarkable looking man, with just the sort of face and expression one sees in pictures of Italian brigands. He was not the least like a laboring man in either manner or appearance. His features were strikingly handsome; his eyes, wild and black, gleamed with a most sinister expression; his mouth was hard and cruel. He was a dreadful tyrant, too, and his temper often broke out into such wild gusts of vindictive passion on the most trifling occasion, that scenes of great violence often took place in the shanty, which stood about thirty yards from our home.

Ulick often questioned Isabella, our only hired girl, as to whether we had much ready money in the house, and where the silver was kept that he saw being cleaned in the kitchen.

It was her opinion that he was a desperate character. I knew little of the world's wickedness in those days, but I felt an instinctive dread of the bold stare he always gave me if I happened to meet him about the place. Once he sent a message for me to go and see him, as he was very ill.

His brother Mike brought over the message, and left directly as he had given it to me, so I had no chance to ask him what was wrong with Ulick. I made a little custard, which I thought might tempt a sick person to eat, and tying on my hat, was about to take it over, when Isabella stopped me.

"Wait till the master comes in, ma'am. He will take that over if you cannot spare me."

"But, Bella, Ulick is sick, and requested to see me."

"Never mind that, ma'am," she replied quietly. "Take my advice and do not go. I know the man better than you do, and I would almost swear that there is nothing the matter with him."

From that day my dread of Ulick Burke increased, and I eagerly looked forward to the time when the fallow should be cleared, and the shanty rid of its rough inmates.

It was in the month of February that business of an urgent nature obliged my husband to leave home for a town some forty miles distant. We had no man servant belonging to the house—not even a boy; so Isabella and myself were alone in our lonely dwelling.

My brother had not been over for some days, so did not know of my husband's intended journey.

All day long, after he left, I felt a strange presentiment of coming evil, which as night drew on, rather increased than diminished.

Never before had the wind sounded so dreary as it did on that February night, as it moaned and sighed through the tall pine trees, or blew in fitful and angry gusts across the clearing.

I would have retired to bed in the hope of sleeping off my fears, but my baby was very restless, and I could not get him to sleep.

Taking the little man in my arms, I soon succeeded in amusing him and myself also, as in watching his playful wiles I for a time forgot my fears; but just as I was rising to prepare for bed, I heard the tramping of oxen, and the loud shouting of the men who had that day gone to P—— to bring up stores of pork, whiskey and tobacco.

I knew at once, by the harsh words and horrid oaths that fell upon my ear, that the brothers had been drinking freely, and a feeling came into my mind that I would wait until all was quiet at the shanty before we ourselves retired for the night.

Baby had calmed down nicely, and was lying quietly upon my knee, when horror of horrors! I happened to raise my eyes in the direction of the window, and saw a face pressed against one of the panes of glass, which, even in my wild terror, I recognized as belonging to Ulick Burke, regarding me with a look of fiendish hatred.

I knew enough not to scream, but rising up with a desperate effort, I dragged my trembling limbs into the kitchen.

Isabella had her back towards me, so she did not catch sight of my white and ghastly face, and before I had time to tell her anything, the kitchen door opened, and Ulick entered.

He closed the door carefully behind him, and stepping up directly in front of me, he fixed his gleaming eyes upon my face, with an expression which sent every drop of blood curdling to my heart.

I clasped my helpless infant tightly in my arms, and retreating back a step or two, I could not articulate a single word; a deadly fear took possession of me.

Twice I tried to speak, but the sound died away on my lips.

"What brings you here so late, Ulick? The fire is out in the shanty, I reckon, and you're wanting a coal to light it again," said Isabella, with perfect coolness.

"The fire is not out," he replied, without removing his eyes from my face; but I've come to spend the night with your mistress. 'Tis a lonesome thing for two women to be by themselves in a place like this. You might both be murdered, and who would be the wiser?"

Then, drawing a chair towards me as he spoke, he sat down, still watching me with those terrible eyes. Isabella stood behind him, and I could see her, though he could not. She made signs to me not to show such deadly marks of terror as were visible on my face.

"The mistress and myself are obliged to you, Ulick; but did you not know that we expect the master in every minute?"

He laughed a low, mocking laugh.

"You may spare your looks, then, for he started for C—— at noon to day. It will be some days before you see him again—perhaps never."

"Sure," she replied, quickly, "did he not leave them papers that he was obliged to take with him—and he must come back for them. 'Tis for him we are keeping up a big fire; and don't you see the kettle boiling, all ready for his tea?"

"Maybe I can spare you the trouble of sitting up for him," he said, with an air of ill-disguised triumph. "I went on to P——, and saw him with my own eyes. He gave me this scrap of paper for her." Here he pointed toward me. "I am not much of a scholar, but I managed to make out by the writing that he had gone on to the big town on the lake this evening."

Every hope of rescue died out of my heart at these words. A faint hope had clung to me that he would not doubt Isabella's story, and would at once leave the house; but the knowledge he expressed of the contents of my husband's note filled me with terror.

I shook and trembled so that I could scarcely stand, while I held my letter unread in my hand.

"Ulick, you have been fighting over in the shanty since you came home, have you not?" asked Isabella, quietly

"Yes," he replied, sullenly, "we have. Kelly and Pat have drawn knives more than once this evening, and the boys got at the whiskey, and never left a drop. I gave Mike a thrashing that he won't get over in a hurry, and Pat is lying half dead in the shanty, but not by my hand. I did not want to see him hurt, and it will be the worst for the next who touches him."

He rose up as he said this, and opening the kitchen door as if to listen, but all seemed quiet, so he shut the door, and instead of sitting down again, he walked up directly in front of me, and once I encountered the gaze of those dreadful eyes.

"I've a long score to settle with you," he said, "but I kept quiet until the master went away. He is gone at last, and anger keeps warm with nursing. You are both in my power now. Do you see that?" He held up a long, bright knife, which, while speaking, he had drawn from beneath his coat. "Give me the child!"

At those terrible words, my courage in some degree returned, and stepping back quietly, I exclaimed—

"You surely would not injure my child, Ulick! You would not hurt my innocent babe! He, at least, has done you no harm; neither have any of us, that I am aware of."

I had still kept retreating back, step by step, as I spoke, and step by step he advanced.

We had almost reached the parlor door. My baby was in danger of suffocation, owing to the vice-like embrace in which I held him.

Suddenly Isabella ran quickly past me, and I heard her open the glass door which looked down the garden.

I thought she had forsaken me in my sore extremity, and that I was alone with a murderer. I closed my eyes to shut out that dreadful face, while I tried to offer up a brief but earnest prayer for pardon to my God and my Judge for all the sins I had committed against Him.

"Ulick, Ulick, for the love of Heaven, run! They are murdering Pat. I hear him screaming for help!" was the entreating words of Isabella, who had been standing at the door all the time I thought myself alone.

Taken completely by surprise, and thoroughly deceived by the girl's violently excited manner, as she stood wringing her hands and crying, "Run, run, or they will kill him before you get there!" Ulick instantly released his hold of my arm, and without a word, dashed out of the room in the direction of the shanty.

Not a moment was lost. Drawing a heavy chest across the door, which she next fastened by means of a fork under the latch, and then nailed down the windows. I could give her no assistance. I sat crouching over my babe, while my whole frame shook with low, convulsive sobs.

"Oh, Isabella," at last, I whispered, "what will those frail fastenings avail against that terrible man, when he returns again, enraged at being deceived by you?"

"Do you see that door?" she replied, pointing to the glass door.

"I do. It is unfastened," was my despairing answer.

"Well, I know; it's all the better for you. Now, listen to me, mistress. If Ulick Burke returns—and I am almost sure he will do so—leave me to talk to him, and run for your life over to the shanty, and throw yourself upon his brothers for protection. There are five of them, and with the exception of Pat, they all hate Ulick. Tell them your danger, and if I am not mistaken, Tom and Mike and Kelly and John will take your part. 'Tis your only chance, for he would not spare you."

"And what is to become of you, my brave Isabella?"

"I am not afraid to die; I have neither husband nor child to fret for me; but I would sell my life dearly to that ruffian," was her quiet reply.

Oh, what a long, weary night that was, as we sat there, expecting his return. Often did I rise and grasp Isabella's arm in an agony of terror and despair, as I fancied I heard his tread on the doorstep, or saw those gleaming eyes peering at us through the window.

The fire went out for want of fuel, and we dare not open the door to get a stick for it, so that we were shivering with cold as well as fear before the dawn broke. But a merciful Providence watched over us in our lonely helplessness, for Ulick Burke did not return again.

One of the boys came over next day, and Isabella asked him, in a careless way, what they had been about over at the shanty the night before.

"Drinking and fighting the first part of the evening; and then Ulick went out, after he had beaten Mike terribly; so we made a vow to be revenged on him, and when he came in again, we all seized him, and bound him down with cords, and then pitched into him. He won't leave his bed for a month, I can tell you; but he deserved all he got. We would have given him twice as much, only Pat begged so hard for him to be let alone."

The mystery of Ulick not returning was now explained, and little did the brothers ever guess that, in revenging themselves, they had, in all human probability, saved the lives of two people.

Not daring to spend another night alone, I walked over to my brother's after breakfast, and he sent one of his men over to sleep at our house until my husband came back.

I knew that one month more would finish the chopping, and so great was my dread of Ulick Burke's revengeful temper, that I told neither husband nor brother of my "night of terror" spent in my first home in America, with no other companion than brave Isabella Gordon.

Reading for the Million.

A Man Eating Plant.

Karl Leche, the eminent German botanist, in a letter to his friend Dr. Friedlowsky describes a singular plant he has discovered in Madagascar, which is called "Crinoida Dajeeana," or the man eater, from its peculiar power of destroying life and absorbing a human body. The plant was called to his attention by a native chief, and he was favored with an exhibition of its operation, which he thus describes:

Suddenly all of the natives began to cry "Tepe! Tepe!" and Henrick, stopping short said "Look!" The sluggish, canal-like stream here wound slowly by, and in a bare spot in its bend was the most singular of trees. I have called it Crinoida because when its leaves are in action it bears a striking resemblance to that well-known fossil—the crinoid lilystone, or St. Cuthbert's beads. It was now at rest, however, and I will try to describe it to you. If you can imagine a pine apple eight feet high, and thick in proportion, resting upon its base and denuded of leaves, you will have a good idea of the trunk of the tree, which however, has not the color of an anana, but a dark, dingy brown, and apparently hard as iron.

From the apex of this truncated cone (at least two feet in diameter) eight leaves hung sheer to the ground, like doors swung back on their hinges. These leaves, which were joined to the top of the tree at regular intervals, were about eleven or twelve feet long, and shaped very much like the leaves of the American aguave, or century plant. They were two feet through in the thickest part and three feet wide, tapering to a sharp point, that looked like a cow's horn, very convex on the outer (but now under) surface slightly concave. This concave face was thickly set with very strong, thorny hooks, like those upon the head of the teazle. These leaves, hanging thus limp and lifeless, dead green in color, had in appearance the massive strength of oak fibre.

The apex of the cone was a round, white, concave figure, like a smaller plate set within a larger one. This was not a flower but a receptacle, and there exuded into it a clear, treacly liquid, honey sweet and possessed of violent intoxicating and soporific properties. From underneath the rim (so to speak) of the undermost plate a series of long, hairy, green tendrils stretched out in every direction towards the horizon. These were seven or eight feet each, and tapered from four inches to a half in diameter, yet they stretched out stiffly as iron rods. Above these (from between the upper and under cup) six white, almost transparent, palpi reared themselves toward the sky, twirling and twisting with a marvellous incessant motion, yet constantly reaching upwards. Thin as reeds, and frail as quills apparently, they were yet five or six feet tall, and were so constantly and vigorously in motion, with such a subtle, sinuous silent throbbing against the air, that they made me shudder in spite of myself with their suggestion of serpents flayed yet dancing on their tails.

Here were not corolla, pistils, stamens, a flower, mind you, nor nothing like it. For Crinoida, unknown, new species as it is, is highest akin to the cycadatæ, and perhaps its exact prototype may be found among the fossil cycadatæ, though I confess I do not remember any one that presents all its peculiar features. The description I am giving you now is partly made up from a subsequent careful inspection of the plant.—My observations on this occasion were suddenly interrupted by the natives, who had been shrieking around the tree in their shrill voices, and chanting what Henrick told me were propitiatory hymns to the great tree devil.

With still wilder shrieks and chants they now surrounded one of the women, and urged with the points of their javelins until slowly, and with despairing face, she climbed up the rough stalk of the tree and stood on the summit of the cone, the palpi whirling all about her. "Tisk! tisk!" (drink! drink!") cried the men, and, stooping, she drank of the viscid fluid in the cup, rising instantly again with wild frenzy in her face and convulsive chorea in her limbs. But she did not jump down, as she seemed to intend to do. Oh no! The atrocious cannibal tree that had been so inert and dead came to a sudden savage life. The slender, delicate palpi, with the fury of starved serpents, quivered a moment over her head, then, as if instinct with demoniac intelligence, fastened upon her in sudden coils round and round her neck and arms; then, while her awful screams and yet more awful laughter rose wilder to be instantly strangled down again into a gurgled moan, the tendrils one after another, like great green serpents, with brutal energy and infernal rapidity rose, retracted themselves, and wrapped her about in fold after fold, ever tightening, with the cruel swiftness and savage, tenacity of anacondas fastening upon their prey. It was the barbarity of the Laocoon without its beauty—this strange, horrible murder. And now the great leaves rose slowly and stiffly like the arms of a derrick, erected themselves in the air, approached one another, and closed about the dead and hampered victim with the silent force of a hydraulic press and the ruthless purpose of a thumb-screw. A moment more, and while I could see the baser of these great levers pressing more tightly toward each other, from their interstices there trickled down the stalk of the tree great streams of the viscid, honey-like fluid, mingled horribly with the blood and oozing viscera of the victim. At sight of this the savage hordes around me, yelling madly, bounded forward, crowded to the tree, clasped it, and with cups, leaves, hands and tonges, got each one enough of the liquor to send him mad and frantic.—Then ensued a grotesque and indescribably hideous orgie, from which, even while its convulsive madness was turning rapidly into delirium and insensibility, Henrick dragged me hurriedly away into the recesses of the forest, hiding me from the dangerous brutes and the brutes from me. May I never see such a sight again.

Said Ben Yalhamah says he will go aboard his ship in half an hour and sail, so I must be brief. In the course of my stay in the valley of twenty-one days I saw six other specimens of the Crinoida Dajeeana, but none so large as this which the Mixodos worshipped. I discovered that they are unquestionably carniverous, in the same sense that dionea and drosers are insectiverous. The retracted leaves of the great tree kept their upright position during ten days, and then, when I came again one morning they were prone again, the tendrils stretched, the palpi floating, and nothing but a white skull at the foot of the tree to remind me of the sacrifice that had taken place there. I climbed into a neighboring tree and saw that all trace of the victim had disappeared and the cup was again supplied with the viscid fluid.

The indescribable rapidity and energy of its movements may be inferred from the fact that I saw a smaller one seize, capture and destroy an active little lemur which, dropping by accident upon it while watching and grinning at me, in vain endeavored to escape from the fatal toils.

With Henrick's assistance and the consent of some of the head med of the Mikodos (who, however, did not dare stay to witness the act of sacrifice,) I cut down one of the minor trees and dissected it carefully. I must defer to my next the details of this most interesting examination.

Driving and Killing Seal.

A walk of half a mile down from the village to the reef on St. Paul Island any time during September, says a correspondent writing from Behring's Straits, will carry you to the parade grounds of over two hundred thousand seal, among which you can slowly make your way, while they clear out from your path ahead, and close again in your rear, you only interrupting them in their sleep or at play for a few moments. This reef ground in September and early October is a strange spectacle, as you walk through legions of semi-indifferent seals, some timid, others boldly defiant, though all give you room enough to move safely over the length and breadth of the mighty breeding ground, the summer haunt of a million of animals universally deemed wild, yet breeding here undisturbed by the close proximity and daily visitation of man; creatures which will fight one another to the death rather than forsake their stands on the rookeries, yet will permit you to approach them to within almost reaching distance without injury; old bulls which will die before they will leave their posts, yet lie down and sleep while you stand by to sketch or observe them scarcely ten feet distant. No other wild animal in the brute world will permit this immediate attention from man. The great cowardly sea-lions, the big lumbering walruses, leave their offspring at slight alarm, and retreat precipitately to the water; the presence of human beings is the signal for speedy departure from their breeding haunts; but the fur seal breeds within a pistol shot of the villages on St. Paul and St. George Islands, and in full sight, and is in no way whatever concerned if not purposely harassed or driven from its position. From the windows of the Government House of St. Paul Island one can view the movements and listen to the cries of fifty thousand breeding seals and pups at any time during July, August and September, as they lie on the lagoon spit, less than a quarter of a mile away, and in the same field of vision see the killing gang at work slaughtering and skinning, not much more than fifty yards away from the indifferent animals on this lagoon rookery which are only separated from these men busy in their bloody labor by a small stream of tide-water.

The capturing, driving, killing, and skinning of the fur seals is done entirely by the people of the islands, who carry on this business rapidly and skillfully, and who are alone, by the terms of the lease, permitted to participate in this labor and share its reward, so long as they shall of their own free-will be equal to its proper execution.

The Crop Prospect.

In the present financial condition of the country nothing is more important than a plentiful harvest, and for this the signs are more favorable. The Cincinnati Times says: The first new wheat reached St. Louis, and the mills of Georgia have been for a week past grinding grain from her own fields. The season is far enough past the time of frosts and early drought and food to forecast the result of the harvest, and the wise men of all sections are at work with their agricultural astrolabes.

The verdict is, generally, favorable. Corn in consequence of backward weather, was put in so late in the great corn States of the West and Northwest, as to create much doubt of even an average crop, but later advices as to its starting give far better promise. To escape the late frosts with certainty, corn should be in the ground as early as the 15th of May and though planting this year was generally a little later, heat and moisture has brought it up so rapidly as to leave no doubt of a fair return. Winter wheat, speaking at large, will not furnish more than an ordinary yield; the abundant harvest of the Pacific coast being offset by the winter-killed fields of the Middle States. The breadth of land put out to grain is, on the other hand, larger this year than ever before, and the total yield of corn and wheat—the latter swelled by the unusually fine crop of spring wheat—promises to run considerably over our average.

In fruit, despite the crooking that comes with every spring, there will be a handsome yield, the losses lying more in the destruction of orchards in the winter of 1872-3 than in the freezing this spring.

The farming population have much reason to congratulate themselves on the prospect, heightened as it is with the promise of a large foreign demand for wheat, good prices for both wheat and corn at home, and considerably lessened rates of transportation West to East.

The Scranton Republican says a fossilized horse has been discovered in a stone quarry in that city, sixty feet below the surface. It is thought this horse discovered America before Columbus.

The Grand Initiation Rites Revealed.

Persons who are about to become members of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, before joining should read the following account of the terrible ordeal through which they will have to pass, as revealed by the Randolph, O., Enterprise:

On being brought into the ante-room of the lodge (Greengrocer Temple, No. 101) I was told that I had been balloted for and accepted. My informant, who was securely masked by what I afterwards learned was a large burdock leaf perforated with holes for the eyes, told me that if I valued my life it would be necessary for me to strip. As I did consider that of considerable worth to me, and as he italicised his wishes by carelessly playing with a seven shooter, I withdrew from my garments with eagerness. My masked friend then furnished me with the regalia of the first degree—called "The Festive Plowboy"—which consisted merely of one large cabbage leaf attached to a waist-band of potato vines. In this airy costume I was conducted to the door, where my companion gave three distinct raps. (I was securely blindfolded by binding a slice of rutabaga over each eye.) A sepulchral voice from within asks: "Who comes?"

My guide answered: "A youthful agriculturist who desires to become a granger."

Sepulchral Voice—"Have you looked him carefully over?"

Guide—"I have, noble gate-keeper."

S. V.—"Do you find any agricultural marks about his person?"

Guide—"I do."

S. V.—"What are they?"

Guide—"The candidate has carroty hair, reddish whiskers, and a turnup nose."

S. V.—"'Tis well. Why do you desire to become a granger?"

Guide—(answering for candidate)—"That I may be thereby better enabled to harrow up the feelings of the rascally politicians."

S. V.—"You will bring in the candidate. My worthy stripling, as you cannot see, I cause you to feel that you are received at the door on the three points of the pitchfork, pierced in the region of the stomach, which is to teach you the three great virtues—faith, hope and charity. Faith in yourself, hope for cheaper farm machinery, and charity for the lightning-rod peddler. You will now be harnessed, and in representation of the horse Pegasus, will be tested as to endurance and wind."

The candidate is here attached to a small imitation plow, by means of a hempen harness. A dried pumpkin vine is put in his mouth for a bit and bridle—he is made to get down on all fours, the guide seizes the bridle, and urged on by a granger armed with a Canada thistle, which he vigorously applies at the terminus of the spine, the candidate is galloped three times around the room. While making the circuit the members arise and sing:

Get up and dust, you bully boy—
Who wouldn't be a granger?
If the thistle's prick don't cause you joy,
To feeling you are estranged, ah!

After this violent exercise he is rubbed dry with corn-cobs, besmeared where thistled, and brought standing up before the great chief—the most worshipful pumpkin head.

M. W. P. H.—"Why do you desire to be a granger?"

Candidate—(answering for himself)—"That I may learn to extinguish sewing-machine agents."

M. W. P. H.—"Have your hands been hardened with toil?"

Candidate—"Not exactly, but then I am not running for office."

M. W. P. H.—"'Tis well, for our lodges contain several who are supposed to be ready to sacrifice themselves for their constituents. Do you feel pretty smart this evening?"

Candidate—"Yes, where the bustle goes on."

M. W. P. H.—(savagely) "Give me a chaw of tobacker?"

Candidate searches himself thoroughly, but as there is no place about him to stick a pocket, tries to explain, but the most worshipful pumpkin head interrupts him with:

"Never mind, my dear young friend. I am well aware that in your present condition you can no more furnish your friends with the weed than Adam could by comfortable in a plug hat and tight boots. It is merely to teach you the great lesson of economy—doing to others as you'd like to have them do to you. You will now be conducted to the most eminent squash-producer, who will teach you the grand hailing sign of distress. The sign, my worthy brother, will insure you against many of the ills of the agriculturist—among others against droughts and being bit by the ferocious grasshopper."

The candidate is now conducted to the most eminent squash-producer, who thus says: "My worthy brother, I will now invest you with the order of the Festive Plowboy, which you have well won by your heroic achievement while harnessed—may you ever wear it with pleasure to yourself and may it be a means of terror to your enemies."

(The M. E. S. P. then proceeds to invest the regalia of the Festive Plowboy, which consists of a long tomato necklace.)

"The grand hailing sign of distress is made by closing the left eye, laying the right forefinger along the nose, and violently wagging the ears. It requires practice, but the advantages are intense. It also has an important signification, which you will do well to head. The closing of the eye signifies that in all your dealings with mankind you are bound to have an eye to business. Laying the finger alongside the nose is emblematical of wisdom, and places you at once among the 'knowing ones.' This is extremely handy in prognosticating of new weather, and saves the wear and tear of almanacs. Wagging the ears signifies sublimity of purpose, and is thought to be emblematical of childhood's happy hours. It is also supposed by some profound scholars to have a distinct reference to apple dumplings, and this fact is somewhat obscured by the dust of ages. In token that you are one of us you will now be branded."

This ceremony is uncommonly impressive and consists of two brands. They are both applied "while the iron is hot," and consist of one letter of the alphabet each. The first is a large letter S on which you will please sit while the other letter is applied to the stomach. The letter S, my worthy chicken, signifies scooped, and refers to railroad monopolies. It is also supposed to indicate the seat of learning—the spot where the old time teacher busted the brains with the ferrule. The second letter is C, and is applied, as I said before, to the stomach. It has a double meaning. First the application is an agricultural one, "corn crib," and has reference to the stomach as being the great receptacle for Bourbon whiskey. But, brother, do not be diligent in finding a home market for your corn. The second application of the letter C, my distracted infant, is got hold of as follows: When a granger desires to ascertain "for sure" if there is another of the order in the room, he raises himself gently by the slack of his—of his unmentionables—scratches his off thigh by his near hoof, and remarks in a voice of thunder: "Are there any grangers about?" The answer is "Jesse was." The inquirer then says, "Let us see," (letter C,) and the other party must immediately pull out his stomach and disclose the brand.

The brands are applied in such a manner that I am enabled to assure you that they will wash.

I was here interrupted. Mr. Editor, by a volley fired into the open window, evidently intended for me. Fortunately I escaped without a scratch, and which is of more consequence, succeeded in bringing off my precious manuscript. This is about all there is in the ceremony of my importance—I must leave the country at once—armed men are at my heels—they know I am writing to expose them. You may hear from me again by mail, if I should deem it best to expose the other degrees. Until then—adieu. From your sacred friend, B. POLE.

Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscriptions and Arrearages.

The following is the law relating to newspapers and subscribers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.
4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The Courts have decided that "refusing to take periodicals from the office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.
7. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican voters of Huntingdon county are respectfully requested to assemble in their respective wards, boroughs, townships, and election districts, at the legal places for holding elections, on Saturday August 8th, 1874, and elect delegates, according to the apportionment fixed by the Republican County Committee on the 11th of June, 1874, to meet in County Convention, in Yeater's Hall, at Huntingdon, on Tuesday, August 11th, 1874, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to place in nomination,

Two persons for Assembly.
One person for High Sheriff.
One person for County Commissioner.
One person for Director of the Poor.
One person for County Auditor.
One person for County Surveyor.

Also, to elect three Conferees to meet like number of Conferees from Franklin county, to put in nomination one person for State Senator for the 33d district.

Also, to elect three Conferees to meet like number of Conferees from Franklin, Fulton, Juniata, Perry and Snyder counties, to put in nomination one person for Congress for the 18th district.

And to transact such other business as may be brought before the Convention.

The wards, boroughs, townships and election districts are entitled to delegates as follows:

J. HALL MUSSER,
Chairman Republican County Committee.
Huntingdon, June 22, 1874.

☞ Congress adjourns to-day (Tuesday) according to previous concurrent action.

☞ We direct attention to the call for the meeting of the Republican County Convention in to-day's paper.

☞ Mrs Cameron, wife of Hon. Simon Cameron, died, on Friday morning last, at Harrisburg. She was buried on Monday. This is the second death, in the Cameron family, within a few months.

☞ The Fourth Annual Commencement Exercises of the Mercersburg College, located at Mercersburg, Franklin county, Pa., will be held, on July 1st, proximo. A cordial invitation is extended to the readers of the JOURNAL to be present. A fine treat is promised them.

☞ The proceedings of the Republican County Committee will be found in another column. The Committee, it will be noticed, selected H. Clay Marshall, esq., and the editor of this paper as Representative Delegates to the State Convention, and presented the name of Al. Tyhurst, esq., for Senatorial Delegate in connection with Franklin. The basis of representation in the County Convention was changed to a more representative form, making seventy votes the minimum for two delegates. This is right. The same system is extant in Franklin, Bedford, Blair and other neighboring counties. The proceedings of the Committee were characterized with much harmony and all the members felt confident that the Republican party would come out triumphant at the approaching election.

☞ After a long and animated debate the House modified the Senate amendment to the postal appropriation bill. The prepayment feature is, of course, retained, and the rates fixed at the following figures: On newspapers and periodicals issued weekly, and more frequently than once a week, 1½ cents for each pound or fraction thereof and on those published less frequently 3 cents a pound, provided that the rate of postage on newspapers or periodicals not exceeding two ounces in weight, and circulars when the same are deposited in a letter-carrier office for delivery by the office or its carriers, shall be uniform at 1 cent each; but periodicals and weekly papers, more than two ounces, shall be subject to a postage of 2 cents each, and these rates shall be prepaid by stamps. The amendment allowing single copies of newspapers to go through the mails free within the county was concurred in.

☞ It is refreshing to record an act of newspaper independence, particularly on the part of a Democratic editor. With this view we copy the following manly language from the Carlisle Volunteer, a paper which has been for half a century, the recognized organ of the Bourbons in Cumberland county, in this State:

"We will never consent to wear a party collar, and will always exercise the right to denounce and oppose aspirants in our party whose garments smell of corruption, or whose mental faculties unfit them for the position they covet. This is a progressive age and the party lash has lost its cracker. Editors, like other men of reflection, feel it encumbent upon them to be free and independent to speak their sentiments—without fear, favor or affection—on all subjects agitating the public mind. We will, then consider ourself just as free to censure dishonest and crafty political friends—when those friends occupy public positions—as political enemies."

The two republican factions in Huntingdon county still keep up their fight. The Scott wing has named its delegates to the State Convention and fixed the second Tuesday of September as the time for making county nominations. A resolution to consult with the county committee of the other faction was voted down. This promises well for democracy and the people of Huntingdon county.—Harrisburg Patriot.

This is simply a mistake. There was no proposition before the County Committee to appoint a Committee to confer with any one or any number of those who have drifted out from and into opposition to the regular Republican organization in this county. Messrs. Guss and Woods saw fit to withdraw, with their adherents, from the regular organization last year, and when they, or any of their followers, desire to return, they can do so—the door is wide open. We hope those who gave currency to the above report will have the manliness to correct it.

☞ The new currency bill embodied in the report of the conference committee has passed the House by the practically unanimous vote of 221 to 40. There can be no question now that it will receive the approval of the President. The business community will then have a basis upon which to build, and will need fear no changes either in the currency or the tariff for some time to come. The Treasury Department will be prevented by this bill from putting into practice any disastrous contraction theories, and there is certain to be no legislation looking toward contraction before a year from next winter, even should the new Congress have a majority favoring such legislation, which now seems very improbable. The elections this fall are likely to reveal so strong a feeling among the people for a flexible greenback currency that if any change is made next winter it will be in that direction. There will be every reason, therefore, for confidence in the future.—Press.

News and Notes from Washington.

Congress Closing up its Labors—A Look in Business on the Speaker's Table—The Bill Passed to Abolish the District Government—Lafayette's Watch Found and to be Restored to the Family—The Crop Reports—Extraordinary Wheat Crop in California.

WASHINGTON, June 20, 1874.

THE BUSINESS OF THE SESSION DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

A large number of bills have been passed during the week and received the President's signature. The Civil Rights Bill has unexpectedly blocked the business in the House to some extent. The bill passed the Senate and when it reached the House it was sent to the Speaker's table where it became a stumbling block against action on other bills. When the House proceeds to act upon business on the Speaker's table bills come up in their order of precedence. The Civil Rights Bill would be reached in turn. As there is a clear majority in the House to pass it, the only effectual way for its opponents to keep it slumbering is to refuse to go to business on the Speaker's table, which requires a two-thirds vote. There are votes enough in the House, opposed to the bill, to persist in such refusal. But the trouble comes up in another shape. Not only is the Civil Rights bill on the Speaker's table, but among others also some that are simply hobby jobs, such as land grants, relief bills, railroad subsidies, and sundry other matters of questionable public utility. Many of these bills would probably pass; but those interested in them are afraid to order legislation which would reach them, inasmuch as the civil rights bill would also be reached in turn and be acted upon. Hence the continued lock. Gen. Butler, on several occasions, tried to relieve matters, and finally proposed to have the civil rights bill referred to the Judiciary Committee. But those opposed to the bill are afraid that if it gets into his hands he would report it at an apportune time and put it through. On Thursday the House made an attempt to go to business on the Speaker's table, which failed by a vote of 138 yeas and 111 nays, not two-thirds. Later in the day Mr. Starkweather made a motion, which prevailed, ordering the House to proceed to business on the Speaker's table under the two-thirds rule—that is, requiring a two-thirds vote to pass any bill. This will, of course, kill the civil rights bill if it comes up; but will also defeat some other bills of doubtful utility.

It appears now that Congress will not close on Monday. One additional day may, however, afford time enough to complete all important business. An extra Executive Session of the Senate will apparently not be required, as confirmations or other business has not been allowed to accumulate.

Senator Cameron has been called home under the sad bereavement by the death of his wife.

The bill abolishing the Government of the District of Columbia has passed both Houses, and will receive the approval of the President before this reaches the eye of the reader. The District Governor, Legislature, Board of Public Works and Delegate in Congress (after the close of his present term,) have all been dispensed with. The President is authorized to appoint a commission of three persons to assume all the duties pertaining to the public affairs of the District pro tem. together with an officer of the Engineer corps of the army to be detailed by the President to look after the repairs of streets and bridges in the District. A committee of Congress is authorized and empowered to prepare and report a new form of Government at the commencement of the next session of Congress. A tax of 2 per cent. on property for 1874 will be due and payable (under the old order,) on the first of July ensuing; and under the new order another tax of 3 per cent. will be due and payable on the first of November, 1874, or suffer the delinquents penalty. The assessed value, and that is said to be about the true value of city property, is a little short of $100,000,000, and the expenditures of the Government and Board of Public Works have amounted to one-fourth of this amount! And it is now conceded by unprejudiced scientific minds that under proper management the real value of the improvements cannot exceeed half the amount they have cost the property holders.

LAFAYETTE'S WASHINGTON WATCH.

In the House on Thursday morning, Mr. Hooper, of Massachusetts, exhibited the watch presented to Lafayette by George Washington, and which was afterwards stolen from him and recovered. Mr. Hooper offered a resolution that the sum of $300 be appropriated to purchase it from the present owner, that it may become the property of the United States. The resolution was adopted. Many of the members gathered around Mr. Hooper to examine this interesting relic. It is a small open-faced gold watch, and was presented on the occasion of the capitulation of Cornwallis. It was stolen from Lafayette on a subsequent visit to this country in 1825, at Nashville, Tenn. A large reward was offered at the time, but the watch was never heard of until about four years ago, when it was purchased by a gentleman of Texas at a pawnbroker's sale at Louisville, Ky. It will be restored to the family of the Marques De Lafayette through the Secretary of State.

THE CROP REPORTS.

The monthly agricultural reports received at the Agricultural Bureau, continue to strengthen confidence in large returns from all the staple products for the season.

The wheat crop in California last year astonished everybody but the story comes, well accredited, that it will this year be nearly double. The area under cultivation is upwards of 2,000,000 acres, 300,000 acres more than last year, and the yield is extraordinarily fine. The crop is estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, having 25,000,000 for export, nearly twice the amount that State has offered for export in a single year; more than all the other States exported last year, and twice as much as Russia exported from her great grain districts on the Danube. California gold is a trifle compared with her golden shower of grain. The desideratum now is ships to carry her immense surplus crops to distant markets.

N. H. P.

To the Republicans of Huntingdon County.

HUNTINGDON, PA., June 22, 1874.

At the meeting of the County Committee on the 11th inst., the time fixed for holding the next County Convention was the 8th day of September next. A few days after the meeting of the Committee I received many letters requesting me to have the matter of the time for holding the Convention reconsidered, and have the day fixed for the first Tuesday of August Court, as usual. Desiring to comply with the wishes of the people, and without putting the members of the Committee to the trouble of another meeting, I addressed the following circular letter to the members of the Committee who had attended the meeting:

HUNTINGDON, PA., June 15, 1874.

Mr.——

Dear Sir.—The late action of the Republican County Committee, in regard to the time for meeting of the next County Convention, does not meet with general approval, and many Republicans request to have the matter reconsidered, and the Convention called for the first TUESDAY OF AUGUST COURT, as usual.

The meeting of the Convention at that time, will no doubt suit the convenience of many persons who wish to attend Court, and I desire to defer to the wishes of our friends. I do not desire, however, to put the members of the Committee to the trouble and expense of another meeting, and have therefore addressed this circular to the members of the Committee present at its last meeting [of the 11th inst.] requesting them to acquiesce in striking out that part of our proceedings which provides for meeting at a later day than usual. If this meets your approval, and I trust it will, please sign and return this circular to me by mail without delay.

Yours Truly,
J. HALL MUSSER,
Chairman Republican County Committee.

I having been present at the meeting of the Republican County Committee, held on the 11th inst., I hereby request the Chairman, J. Hall Musser, to strike out of our proceedings the proposed change in the usual time of meeting of the Republican County Convention, and call the same to meet at the usual time in August next.

These circulars have now been signed and returned to me by every member of the Committee who was present at the meeting, save one or two.

I have therefore issued the call for the Convention to meet at the usual time in August next.

J. HALL MUSSER,
Chairman Rep. Co. Committee.

It is reported that the wheat crop of the Northwest will be benefited by the late heavy rains in that section, as they destroyed the insect which was eating the maturing grain.

At a meeting of the State Central Committee of the Massachusetts Labor Reform party, on Wednesday, it was finally decided to make no nomination for candidates for State officers this year.

READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Brief Mention--Home-made and Stolen.

Pitching quoits is the pastime now.

Judge Summers has a cosy residence.

Vegetation is suffering for want of rain.

Are we going to celebrate on the Fourth?

The fragrance of many roses is upon the air.

The political cauldron will soon begin to boil.

Hon. John Scott is expected home in a few days.

The grain is said to be very good up Stone Creek.

Robley's new brick house will soon be under roof.

Business has been extremely dull for the last week.

Dr. Henry Orlady is expected home from the West.

D. P. Gwin is building an addition to his residence.

A new paper project is being agitated at Orbisonia.

The Court House is slowly having the rough taken off it.

Port & Warfel have retired from the butchering business.

Great loads of bark are to be seen frequently on our streets.

St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church is being renovated.

A number of wells have already failed in West Huntingdon.

The German Reform Church, in this place, is undergoing repairs.

The old potato bugs have left and the new crop is just maturing.

James Gibson's residence, in West Huntingdon, is very neat.

Proposals for the erection of the new Baptist Church are asked.

The Juniata Camp Meeting Association have disposed of all their tents.

The farmers are in clover up to their elbows. Mowing is warm and heavy work.

The Fourth of July never makes an impression in Huntingdon. It never stops.

The temperance crusaders ought to make a raid on a couple of she bangs in this place.

Shaversville and Shade Gap people are making arrangements to entertain the 4th of July.

Strawberries are sold in the streets at 25 cents per quart while they are sold east at 10 cents.

In a few days more the Post Office building will be under roof. Bartol makes things move.

There is a balance of $1,995.00 in the school treasury of this borough. This looks healthy.

Port & Friedly are building a brick house, adjoining their meat market, in West Huntingdon.

A tin wedding, it is said, generally pans out well. So does buying Stationery at the JOURNAL Store.

M. S. Lytle, esq., has had a handsome fence built in front of his premises on "Oneida Heights."

The Infant Department of the M. E. Sunday School will pic-nic, at Cottage Grove, on the 4th prox.

D. W. Artley, esq., formerly of this place, now of Blairsville, smiled upon us on Saturday last.

In Porter township they call black bass black chubs, especially when they are 12 inches long.

Stevenson, of Mt. Union, is happy to fill an order for the E. B. T. R. Company for 140,000 of brick.

Frank Gowan's paper has not put in an appearance yet. Are we to have three Democratic papers?

Dennis O'Rafferty buys his Stationery, pencils, pens, everything, but his ideas, at the JOURNAL Store.

Mr. Geary, of West Huntingdon, we are informed, intends starting a horse-shoe nail manufactory.

Messrs. Long and Lewis have made quite an opening, on Washington street, by the removal of their stables.

Kline, makes the best of photographs, and the JOURNAL store keeps the albums. Don't fail to buy an album.

Messrs. Wells & Lott are about starting a street sprinkler. These enterprising gentlemen have the vim to do it.

A. R. Stewart, esq., has retired from the firm of A. R. Stewart & Co., Mr. Flenner having purchased his interest.

Copies of the JOURNAL, in wrappers, can always be had at the counter of the JOURNAL Store, at five cents per copy.

Twelve hundred dollars worth of three cent postage stamps does not see the Huntingdon postoffice through a single quarter.

It is said that a colony of "down east people," "regular Yankees," is about to locate here. They are abjding the panic.

The currant worm is playing sad havoc with the currants and gooseberries. It is as much of a destroyer as the potato bug.

Dr. Joseph Camp, a circulating Dentist, was thrown out of a buggy, near Marklesburg, one day last week, and had several ribs broken.

The Day Express must be a grand thing for Pittsburgh. We urged the putting on such a train, for their accommodation, several years ago.

A half-dozen of young men cut a pretty figure, in the neighborhood of Eighth and Washington streets, on last Saturday evening. Shame!

Huntingdon county has lost two young and promising physicians within a week—Dr. B F. Greene and Dr. I. J. Meals—both victims of accidents.

James L. Westbrook, of the "Eureka," now serves our citizens, every forenoon, with ice cream neatly packed in quart cans. It is a good idea.

"Wild Bill," the celebrated scout and Indian fighter, passed through here, on last Thursday morning, on the Pacific Express, on his way to Kansas.

A lightning rod man was in town the other day. This means mischief. Farmers, set the dogs on them. They are the greatest frauds of modern times.

Congress has abolished the Civil Service Reform, but Blank books, inks and all manner of Stationery are sold as cheap as ever at the JOURNAL Store.

They have a school master in Shirleysburg, who has taught school for over fifty years, and we will wager a new hat that the is not a millionare either.

Chief of Police Miller arrested an obstreperous individual, Thursday evening, on Allegheny street, and provided him with quarters in Castle Houck.

When Secretary Delano passed over the road, a week or so ago, to Ohio, he failed to lay in a supply of Stationery at the JOURNAL Store. We are sorry for him.

A party of four or five drunken individuals were quartered in Castle Houck from Saturday night until Monday morning. Their conduct was simply outrageous.

D. M. Bare, esq., of Roaring Spring, came in on us last week. He looks quite as well as he did years ago. He is the same old familiar Dan of leathercracker days.

The grandest lot of fancy papers ever brought to Huntingdon for sale at the JOURNAL Store. Ladies if you want to see the latest novelties, step in. No trouble to show goods.

Chief of Police Miller was knocked down, by some cowardly sneak, who struck him on the back of the neck, while he was escorting a drunken rough to jail, on Saturday night.

Our young friend, Harry Thomas, who runs the Mail on the P. R. R., was the lucky man who carried off the lantern at the United Brethren Fair. He is popular with everybody.

The birds have been very severe on the cherries. Mr. Nightwine informs us that many bushels have been devoured for him. The principal depredator is the toppy cherry bird.

The envelope of a letter that passed through the postoffice last evening bore the following superscription: "Mr. Charley doogles fos dora post office Blair county Pa."—Altoona Tribune, Friday.

The police had quite a time with a fellow who had too much benzine in him on last Thursday morning. Too much epilepsy; too much benzine, and too much fight were the principal failings of the chap.

We do not advertise peoples' business, in giving complimentary notices. We frequently compliment people, but advertising their business, which is our mode of making a livelihood, is quite another thing.

Drunkenness has been on the increase for the last week or two. About half-a-dozen chaps will find their way into the Quarter Sessions if they are not very careful. The officers of the law are looking for them.

An Irishman, being asked, in Court, for his certificate of marriage, showed a big scar on his forehead about the size of a small shovel. He could have got a much more handsome and intelligible one at the JOURNAL Store.

From present indications the grain in the community of Three Springs settlement can not be more than a half crop. It is not on the ground. Corn just now looks well; but the dry weather is beginning to affect it some.

The Council has purchased, from Z. Yenter, the balance of that gentleman's lot fronting on Washington Street, extending some fifteen feet to the rear of the Council house, upon which an engine-house is to be erected with a handsome tower.

All the pestiferous matter, in the town, is dumped into Muddy Run, between Penn and Washington streets, where all who pass that way must see the unsightly stuff and inhale the effluvia. The borough authorities ought to see to this matter.

Rev. Daniel Hartman's wife died in Altoona last Friday a week ago, and on the Monday following her remains were taken to Harrisonville, Fulton county, near her maiden home, for interment. The family of the deceased and a few friends attended the corpse.

Eleven and one-half dollars is all the freight that the Huntingdon & Broad Top railroad charges for a loaded box car from Mt. Dallas to Everett Station. The distance is not quite one mile, and at the same rate it would only cost $400.00 from Everett to Huntingdon.—Everett Press.

Webster's dictionary contains over fifty thousand words. Jones says when he came home, late the other night, in the space of fifteen minutes his wife applied them all to him, including some extra ones and the fire-shovel, because he did not call at the JOURNAL store and buy her some of the fine note papers and envelopes for sale there.

There is a fire insurance agent preambulating this county who tells everybody that old and soiled clothes are liable to spontaneous combustion. He even goes so far as to say that two barns have been burned this spring from the spontaneous combustion of a couple of pairs of old over-alls inadvertently left in them. The insurers might smell a big mice.

It does one good to have an old friend call on him. That same happened us on Monday. It was E. L. Russ, esq., a gentleman who has learned the printing business "out and out," from editor down to devil. He puts his time in at the Huntingdon JOURNAL job office now, and pleases everybody with his work, of course. His "shank's mare" expedition from Birmingham to Tyrone, via Warriorsmark, did him good.—Tyrone Herald.

"Uncle Abe," of Orbisonia, is about quitting the business of entertaining travelers and going into stock driving. Judging from the appearance of things in general, (he being an active business man,) he cannot find work enough around a hotel, in a local option district, to keep him employed. Hope he will make things tell. The old man is a jolly old fellow—quite a gallant among the ladies—and withal a handsome man, and, strange to say, is growing at a tremendous rate—going straight up through his hair.

The noon train, on Friday last, by some odd combination of circumstances, rolled us into Altoona, where we had the pleasure of spending a couple of hours, very pleasantly, with our friend and former pupil, D. S. Brumbaugh, esq., of the firm of Tierney & Brumbaugh, attorneys-at-law. We dropped down lightly on Hacket, McCrum, Harry Slep, Dunham, Williams and the Barclays, and we found them full of business. Printing appears to be flourishing in that locality, and we congratulate our contemporaries.

The Musical Association of Huntingdon gave a Concert on Tuesday evening last, for the benefit of the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist Church of this place. The pieces consisted of Anthems, Quartetts, Duets, Solos and Chants. There were five solos and sixteen pieces in all. We were agreeably surprised to learn that there were so many fine singers in Huntingdon, but practice and perseverence will accomplish much. It would have been more credit to some of our citizens if they had remained home from the circus and patronized home art and talents, especially when designed for a good cause. We were loath to leave when the last peice was sung. Give us another Concert.

Gallitzen was the scene of a tragedy on Monday evening of last week. Constable P. A. Burns, armed with a warrant for the arrest of Manis Patton, Joseph Murphey, John Bigler, and John Smith, charged with assault with intent to kill a man named Burke last fall, proceeded to arrest the parties, in that borough, and on his approach Patton attempted to run away. He was ordered to halt, but ran the faster, and while getting over a fence Burns fired several shots, one of which took effect in his shoulder. On being shot he fell off the fence and died almost immediately. One report is that he broke his neck in falling, and another is that death resulted from the shooting. An inquest was held by John Sharbaugh, acting Coroner, but the verdict has not been made public. The other parties surrendered and were taken to jail by Burns. Burns gave himself up, and was admitted to bail in $5,000. Patton resided at Tunnel Hill, Blair county, and is said to have been a dangerous man. He was taken to Altoona and interred in the Catholic cemetery.

Miss Jane, sister of George and Joseph Mingle, living on Zinc mine farm, near Birmingham, met with an accident on Thursday evening of last week, which resulted in her death. In the barn-yard stands a wagon shed, and from this shed to the gate leading from the yard the grade inclines downward pretty rapidly. In the shed was a four-horse wagon, which was usually kept locked to prevent it from running down the hill. On the evening above named Miss Mingle was in the yard milking, and some of the cattle started the vehicle, which was not locked at the time, down the hill by rubbing against it. In order to stop the wagon and prevent it from knocking the gate and fence down, the unfortunate lady ran to catch the lever of the brake, but unfortunately, in her daring attempt to do so, the coupling pole, which projected to the rear, (the wagon was running end foremost,) struck her in the stomach, throwing her to the ground, just as the fence was reached. The accident occurred at half-past six o'clock in the evening, and the lady was a corpse at ten thirty-five the same night. Her age was about fifty-eight years.—Tyrone Herald.

GRATUITOUS PUFFING.—MEADOW GAP, June 18, 1874.—Mr. Editor: I wish you would not take up so much of your paper noticing festivals, fairs, church societies, &c., and other local projects for helping church and other organizations about Huntingdon. I take your paper and pay you for it, and when I asked you to notice an effort to start a Singing School, sometime ago, you refused, saying that you did not gratuitously advertise the business of another. Now, I am satisfied that these church people don't pay you, and I consider we country people have as much claim on you as the town people have, and if you can't do as much for us, we will insist upon you not doing the like for them. We pay you for the news and we don't want that which don't concern us. I shall not stop my paper at present, but I may be induced to do so in the future.

Yours, Y. X. O. P.

Well, we do like your impudence. But this is only a sample of the letters which a newspaper man gets. Everybody thinks he can run a newspaper better than the editor, and whenever he sees something which does not please him down he flops and takes the editor to task. We have got used to this kind of thing, however. Whether there is any good foundation for our friends complaint we will leave those of whom he complains answer. We did refuse to notice his friends singing school because it was a private speculation, but he insisted, on the other hand, that it was for the public good, which, to a certain extent, was true. We believe that we should shut down on all manner of dead heading. We are seldom dead-headed anywhere and don't want to be. Printers are worse afflicted than any other parties in the community, and it is not only a fraud upon them but, it seems, upon our subscribers. We want to be as liberal as the generality of people, but we aught to be allowed to give it outside of our business. If we counted the amount of dead heading that we do for religious and other purposes, in a single year, it would amount to hundreds of dollars, and yet we doubt whether we ever get credit for a single dollar. There is no other person in the community does as much, in his business, of this character, as we do, and why should we be asked to do it? There can be no good reason for it. We have never before looked at it in the light that our correspondent puts it, and we are free to confess that he has shaken our charity, at his expense, considerably. We will turn over a new leaf. You shall not have cause to complain in the future.

SOMETHING NEW.—New from the fact that we seldom hear of a maiden lady willing to acknowledge her age, but this one has made a public acknowledgment by giving a party, with a free invitation, on her fiftieth birthday. The following lines were written on the subject:

Time will not deceive,
Though I scarcely believe
That we celebrate your half century;
It seems but a day,
Since I taught you in play,
To take your first step in the entry.

When you sat on my lap,
And I fed you milk pap,
Or rock'd you for hours in the cradle,
And put you to sleep,
While singing bo-peep,
Or the dish that ran off with the ladle.

I think it so queer,
In so many years,
Why was it you never were married?
Why could you not find,
One suiting your mind,
Was that all the reason you tarried?

But let us suppose
The best of the beaux
Were afraid to approach you in wooing,
They knew you had said
You never would wed,
And faint was their hope in pursuing.

But do not give up,
For yet there is hope;
I know an old bach who is sixty,
Who has plenty of cash,
And would make a good match
For a lady who now is but fifty.

It's known as a fact
I have wonderful tact
In making a match to perfection;
Should he come around,
His mind I will sound,
That is if you have no objection.

The plan I have laid,
When the match is well made
You will ask your old friend to the wedding;
But should you forget,
My dear little pet,
I surely will come without bidding.

Then as an old ruler,
With my three-leg'd stool,
I will find a small nook under cover,
And not as a guest,
Peep out at the rest,
And take a "French leave" when 'tis over.

DEATH OF DR. I. J. MEALS CAUSED BY AN OVER-DOSE OF CHLORAL HYDRATE.—Dr. Meals resided at Mill Creek, this county, where he successfully practiced his profession for several years, making for himself many warm friends. For several weeks he had complained of not feeling very well, and sometimes took hydrate of chloral, in the evening, to enable him to obtain rest and sleep, a solution of which he seems to have had prepared ready for use. On Saturday evening last, a little after 9 o'clock, he poured some of the solution of chloral into a tumbler and drank it. On retiring, he remarked to his wife that he felt very drowsy and he believed he had taken too much chloral, and that she should not allow him to go to sleep. To her question as to how much he had taken, he replied "about three times as much as I should have taken," and also said that he had felt so badly that he scarcely knew what he was doing. He soon became very drowsy, and Mrs. Meals, failing to arouse him, called her mother, Mrs. McGarvey. Mr. McGarvey and some of the neighbors were also called, and finding the alarming nature of the case, Dr. McCarthy was summoned, who, with the aid of the others and the use of the galvanic battery, succeeded in arousing him and keeping him awake until after midnight, when he was able to sit up and talk. There was still a tendency to relapse into a comatose state. About one o'clock he was greatly improved, and Dr. McCarthy, being called in an urgent case, thought it safe to leave him. A little before 2 o'clock he became worse, and a messenger was sent to Huntingdon, in haste, for another physician. About 2 o'clock he became suddenly very drowsy and requested to be laid down, after which he breathed but a few minutes and died. Dr. Brumbaugh, of Huntingdon, came in answer to the call, but arrived too late to aid the patient, as the spirit had already departed.

Dr. Meals was a native of Adams county, where his parents still reside. He leaves a wife, a highly respected lady, daughter of Mr. McGarvey, of Mill Creek, and two children, one 2 years old and the other an infant, to mourn his untimely death.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE MEETING.—Pursuant to notice given, the Republican County Committee met in the Commissioner's office, in the Court House, at 1:30 o'clock, P. M., and was called to order by the Chairman, J. Hall Musser.

The roll was called, and a large number of Committeemen and several substitutes, answered to their names.

On motion, A. S. Brooks, of Carbon, was elected Secretary of the Committee.

The Committee proceeded to the selection of two Representative Delegates to the Republican State Convention, and H. Clay Marshall and J. R. Durborrow, having been placed in nomination, were elected by acclamation.

The preference of the Committee was declared, by acclamation, in favor of Al. Tyhurst, esq., for Senatorial Delegate, with power to select his own Conferees.

The following resolution was then taken up, and was, after debate, adopted by a large majority:

Resolved, That hereafter the apportionment of Delegates to the Republican nominating Convention, in Huntingdon county, shall be based on the Republican vote of the respective wards, boroughs, townships and election districts cast at the last preceding Governor's election, as follows:

First. Every ward, borough, township and election district shall have one delegate for every fifty votes cast, and one additional delegate for every fraction of fifty, equaling twenty or more; provided, however, that every ward, borough, township and election district which does not cast fifty votes shall be entitled to one delegate.

Second. That where a ward, borough, township or election district is only entitled to one delegate on the foregoing basis, but shall have increased the Republican vote at a subsequent State election one ratio or fraction thereof, equaling thirty or more, such ward, borough, township or election district shall be entitled to one additional delegate.

Third. The apportionment for the next Convention shall be as follows:

	DELEGATES.		DELEGATES.
Alexandria Borough,	2	Marklesburg Borough,	1
Barree township,	2	Morris township,	2
Birmingham Borough	1	Mt. Union Borough,	2

Jackson township,	3	Upper West township,	2
Juniata township,	1	Lower West District,	1
Lincoln township,	2
Mapleton Borough,	1	Total,	72.

On motion, the day fixed for Delegate Elections was the Saturday preceding the day of the nominating Convention. The hours fixed for township and election districts from 5 to 8 o'clock, p. m., and in wards and boroughs from 7 to 9 o'clock, p. m.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

A. S. BROOKS, Secretary. J. HALL MUSSER, Chairman.

A FATAL ACCIDENT AND SAD DEATH.—As Dr. B. F. Green, of Scottsville, was returning home from Shirleysburg, on last Tuesday afternoon, in a sulky, and while, it is supposed, he was attempting to turn out of the public into a private road for the purpose of visiting a patient, the sulky from some cause or other—perhaps the stumbling of the horse—was thrown over, and the Doctor precipitated with such violence to the ground, striking on his head and shoulder, as to cause his immediate death.

His body was found by a friend who was passing that way only a short time after the accident occurred, but life was utterly extinct. The horse was also lying by the side of its master, unable, from the position in which it had fallen, to regain its feet.

The Doctor was 25 years, and 6 months of age. He leaves a wife and child, an aged father and mother, with numerous other relatives, and a large circle of friends to mourn his sudden and sad death.

He was a young man of more than ordinary promise for usefulness in life, and had gained such a hold on the hearts of the people in whose midst he labored as is seldom obtained ever in a lifetime. He was a member of the Scottsville Baptist Church, and in his active Christian life he leaves an example worthy of imitation by old and young.

His remains were on Thursday last, followed to their final resting place in the Cemetery at Scottsville by a very large concourse of sympathizing friends.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.—At a stated meeting of Broad Top City Lodge, No. 579, I. O. O. F. of Pa, June 13, 1874, the following Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the dispensation of divine Providence, we are called upon to mourn the loss of our beloved Bro. Oliver W. Taylor, therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. O. W. Taylor, the M. E. Church has lost a faithful member, our Lodge a good and efficient Bro.

Resolved, That we deeply mourn the loss of our Brother and deeply sympathize with the bereft widow of the deceased.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be published in each of the three county papers and a copy thereof be furnished the Widow and Parents of the deceased.

Resolved, That the members of our Lodge wear the usual badge and our Lodge room be draped for the space of thirty days.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

FROM STONE CREEK.

STONE CREEK, June 16th, 1874.

MR. EDITOR:—Not till after having traveled almost all over this county could I fully realize the responsibility of an editor, and his entire inability to please all classes of readers. I find those, (and not by any means a small number,) who think your paper is disgraced by stooping to notice the Globe or anything its editor may say about you or any one else. It is a common remark, and doubless a truthful one, that if he ever had good common sense it is now, and is beneath the notice of every respectable person, while there are those who think you should reply to all his slang, and contradict all the lies and subterfuges that he sets up to build up his character, and smother the truth. It is well-known throughout the county that even among the "Sixteeners," as they call them, who do go to do him honor, do it at the special request of himself or some of his allies, and many in the face of special requests, have the moral courage to refuse, and who say those charges were all the talk in the school while they were there, and every effort he makes to extricate himself only brings out new testimony against him. I have no advice to give as to your better course, seeing that you are in a straight between two. I am glad to see that you were unanimously elected a Delegate to the Republican State Convention by the County Committee; but excuse one suggestion—I do hope you will not publish every week, over a whole column of self-praise and braggadocia, as Guss did last year when he marshalled his clique and had himself elected by fraudulent substitutions, and should you be kicked out as he was, do not cry as he did.

From every place but this,
Yours, RAMBLER.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

A. B. Brumbaugh, M. D., Editor. All matter pertaining to this department should be addressed to P. O. Box 12, Huntingdon.

Life and Times of Charles Sumner; his boyhood, education and public career, by Elias Nason. Quaker City Publishing House, Philadelphia.

When many men who have enjoyed greater opportunities, and who made much greater efforts for popularity shall have been entirely forgotten, and all their works consigned to oblivion, the virtues of Charles Sumner will brighten as the years roll on, his Labors be still more and more appreciated, and his memory be cherished as one of America's greatest statesmen, and an eloquent defender of human freedom; and it is but fitting to the memory of so great a man that such a memoir should be in every family in the land where it can be read and serve as an incentive to the rising youth, and stimulate them to greator efforts for advancement. No book of late years is destined to be in such general demand. Mr. S. S. Place is agent for Huntingdon county.

Steiger's German Series. By Dr. P. Herin. First Book. 25 cents, Rudiments, 50 cents. Key to Rudiments, 25 cents. E. Steiger, N. Y.

A knowledge of the German language should be considered an essential qualification for every business man, and indeed for every person in our country where the German element predominates; and in order to reach that end it should be admitted and taught in our common or public schools. The books of this series are admirably adapted for the purpose for which they were designed. They are quite elementary, simple, attractive, and yet progressive, leading the pupil on by regular gradation from the simplest rudiment to a reasonably good knowledge of the language.

Hearth and Home, recently published by the Orange Judd Company, has been purchased by the Graphic Company, and will appear in the future as an illustrated weekly. The new proprietors promise to make it a worthy competitor of all the illustrated papers. The price will remain the same. Graphic Co., N. Y.

The Poultry World, published by H. H. Stoddard, Hartford, Conn., is a monthly periodical devoted exclusively to poultry. It gives much valuable information, and offers many suggestions of practical value to those interrested in poultry.—Its writers are those who have experience, and give the practical results. $1.25 a year.

Mess. E. Esterbrook & Co., Camden, N. Y., manufacture very good Steel Pens. They are put up in assorted grosses, containing seven kinds of pens, adapted to every style of writing from the finest to the coarsest. The manufacturers offer them in the confidence that "their excellence of temper and quality of material will insure universal approbation."

Wm. Wood & Co. of New York announce that they will at once commence the publication of the Encyclopedia of the Practice of Medicine, in fifteen volumes, each one an independent treatise by one of the most eminent chemical instructors of Germany. It is proposed to publish three or four volumes a year, in as rapid succession as the translations can be accomplished.

Marriages.

STEVENS—BROWN.—On the 18th inst., by the Rev. D. A. Messinger, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. W. B. Stevens to Miss Mollie P. Brown.

PROUGH—HICKS.—On the 18th inst., by the Rev. D. A. Messinger, at the U. B. Parsonage, Mr. Andrew Prough to Miss Minnie Hicks, both of this place.

Deaths.

GREENE.—On the 16th inst., from being thrown from his sulky, in Clay township, Huntingdon county, Dr. B. F. Greene, in the 26th year of his age.

The circumstances of his death are rather mysteries and are briefly as follows: He left his home in Three Springs, at ten o'clock in the morning to go the Log Mill, below Shirleysburg. He returned by way of Orbisonia, and left Dr. Jame's drug store about four o'clock in the evening, was seen again at six o'clock passing Mr. Marlins, at Sugar Grove, some 2½ miles from home. A little after passing this place it is supposed he attempted leaving the public road to go to Mr. Nelson's. The road being very sideling he, the sulky, and horse, were all thrown over the bank a distance of some ten or twelve feet, in this condition he was found by Mr. Marlin some thirty minutes after. He and the horse both lying under the sulky. A coroner's inquest was held agreeing with the above statement. It is with feelings of true sorrow and regret that we record the death of this excellent young friend. He was a young man of more than ordinary promise. He graduated at the Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, in 1872 with the highest honors of the profession. On returning home he at once commenced the practice of medicine at Three Springs, notwithstanding he had considerable opposition to contend with in an older physician, his practice constantly increased, being nearly always successful in treating diseases, and showing more than ordinary skill in his practice. The death of this young man is one of those deep mysterious dealings of God's providence, which show that God's ways are not our ways. Why he was thus torn away from so many dear friends is a mystery to us now. But we have this consolation that Jesus says "what I do thou knowest not now but thou shalt know hereafter." The deceased was born of pious parents, and early in life consecrated himself to Christ and connected with the Baptist church of Scottsville, of which he continued an active and consistent member up to the time of his death, his seat scarcely ever being vacant in church, prayer meeting or sabbath school, only when prevented by his profession. Dr. B. F. Greene lived and died in the same neighborhood in which he was born. That he was highly respected no one could doubt who witnessed the multitudes that gathered around his cold clay to say their last sad silent farewell. Friends and strangers, the rich and the poor, side by side wept over his grave. It is said by the oldest citizens that there never was such a demonstration made at a funeral in Clay township, not less than one thousand persons being present. His remains were accompanied to their last resting place and interred by the several lodges of I. O. O. F. with their usual ceremonies. The religious services were conducted by Revs. Evans and Hunter in a solemn and impressive manner. This death has made a sad separation from a fond wife and a little son too young to know its loss, and an aged father and mother, sister and brother, feel too that this is a dark providence, yet it is comforting to know that the religion of Jesus throws a light over this darkened household, and over the tomb of the loved one, and imparts consolation such as no other can. They feel assured that the beautiful mansion prepared for this loved one in Heaven is now occupied.

"At sunset came a cry—
To meet thy God prepare!
He woke and caught his master's eye,
Then strong in faith and prayer,
His spirit with a bound
Burst from the comb'ring clay;
His tent at sunset on the ground
A darkened ruin lay.
The pains of death are past;
Labor and sorrow cease;
And life's stern conflict o'er at last,
His soul is found in peace."

CENTAUR LINIMENT.

There is no pain, which the Centaur Liniments will not relieve, nowwelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it its true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swelling, caked breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon the animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all healing pain relievers. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle They sell as no article ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretend to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment, white wrapper. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—these liniments are worth your attention. No family should be without them. "White wrapper for family use;" Yellow wrapper for animals. Arbor Day in Nebraska.

It is a fact that tree planting on a large scale is needed on the Nebraska prairie, and the people of the State are fully aware of the importance of the subject. On the bluffs, and on the banks of rivers and streams, there is abundance of wood, and a large variety of native trees; but there is not sufficient for the country. The manner in which lumber is being cut, without the forests being replaced in the east, also points to the time when, if trees are not planted, the lumber crop of the prairie States will be a matter of much moment to the country at large.

In Nebraska timber grows with astonishing rapidity; and, if the farmers of the country are equal to the opportunities, not many years will elapse before the treeless prairie is adorned with waiving woods, the lumber of which will add largely to the revenue of the owners of the soil.

Trees are now being planted in Nebraska by the millions. The Hon. J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska City, Otoe County, has been one of the pioneers in the tree planting movement. He originated the idea of setting apart one day in each Spring to the special work of tree planting. The first "arbor day" was in 1874, and on that day two million tress were planted.—In 1872 and 1873, "arbor-day" was dropped, but it was recommended to the farmers to choose for themselves a day in April, and set it apart for tree planting. This year, however, the State Board of Agriculture has determined to go back to the original plan. It has been resolved that "arbor-day" shall be the second Wednesday in April; and the State Legislature is to be asked to make the day a legal holiday. Each owner of land is recommended to plant at least one tree; and the State Board will award a premium to the person who plants the largest number. It is now the custom of the Board to give a premium to the land owner who has planted the most trees on any given day in April; and, at a recent meeting of the Board, the prize was awarded to a farmer who set out 27,800 trees on the 28th of April, 1873.

Cattle Killing Trees.

It is a fact that all careful farmers must have noticed that a tree, seeming ever so thrifty and of whatever kind, to which cattle have access, and under which they stand will very soon die—in the case of solitary shade trees in pastures or by the road side. This is a common occurrence, and the question naturally arises, why is it? First, rubbing a tree by the necks of cattle is highly injurious, and if persisted in, will commonly destroy them sooner or later; but if the body of the tree be cased so that their necks cannot touch it, death will ensue just as certainly if they are allowed to trample round it. But why should trampling the earth destroy the trees? The reason is one of wide and important application to the laws of vegetable growth. The roots of plants need the air just as much as the leaves and branches. Their case is similar to that of fishes, which, though they must have water, must have air also, viz: just about as much as permeates the water. If it be all shut off, so that none which is fresh can get to them, they will exhaust the supply on hand and then die, for the want of more. So the roots of trees and vegetables want air.—When the earth is in a normal or natural condition, it is full of channels by which air gets to them. But if cattle are allowed to tramp down the earth, and the sun aids the work by baking it at the same time, a crust like brick is formed, that shuts off the moisture, and the tress soon dwindles and dies. So a tree cannot live if its roots are covered with a closed pavement; they will struggle, and hoisting out a brick here and a stone there, or find a crevice where their noses can snuff a little fresh air, but if fought and kept down, will give it up. From the above facts I think cattle of no benefit to orchards, and the farmers who still persist in yarding their stock of cattle in their orchards, must expect the trees to die off.

Housing the Family Carriage.

There is a common and very vexatious complaint from parties who store their carriages in the same building with their horses, or in damp carriage-houses, of poor varnish. This will happen even after the best material and varnish have been used, for no varnish can stand the action of the steam arising in a stables where horses are kept. When a varnished carriage is exposed to an atmosphere of ammonia, arising from manure or decaying vegetable matter, the alkali unites with the oil of the varnish, forming an almost imperceptible filament of soap, which, when the carriage is washed, dissolves in the water, is removed, leaving a fresh surface to be again acted on by the ammonia, so that the oil is gradually removed from the varnish, leaving the brittle gum to look like rosin and crumble away. Therefore, a dry, clean carriage-house, entirely separated from the stable, or stable manure, is the first thing required, and secondly, to have it revarnished when it is required, which is often as once a year, if the carriage is continually used.

Soot for Cabbage Fleas.

As soon as our readers begin to work in the garden we shall begin to hear complaints of the injury being done by cabbage and turnip fleas. In time let us say that a dusting of the plants with soot is not only an excellent preventive of the ravages of these insects, but it is a first rate method of stimulating growth. Now, when you have occasion to clean out your chimneys, stove pipes or stoves where soot accumulates more or less, save all you can and put aside in some dry place for a time of need. Put all your fine dust-like ashes in with the soot, and in spring sift out all the lumps, adding an equal quantity of dry earth or sand to the pure article. To every barrel of this compound add one pound of powdered sulphur, thoroughly mixing it through the heap. Keep dry and under cover until wanted for use.—This mixture will also be found excellent for dusting over melon and cucumber vines as well as upon cabbage and tomato plants.

It absolutely Purifies the Blood. It speedily corrects all morbid changes in the Blood. It equalizes the circulation of the Blood. It regulates the supply and quality of the Blood. It prepares the blood to furnish a proper support to all the vital properties. It enriches the constituents of the Blood upon which the vital energy of the system is dependent. It infuses the proper degree of animal heat in the system. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural functions. It imparts vilality and elasticity to every organ of the Body. It corrects all derangements, however trivial, which are the first origin of Disease. It promotes the operations of the digestive organs. It improves the appetite and removes all disagreeable feeling after eating. It perfects digestion, rendering it natural and easy. It acts as a mild and efficatious stomachic. It elevates the standard of all the vital forces. It strengthens the nervous fibres and diffuses a calm throughout the nervous system. It destroys all morbid conditions of the mind. It disperses dullness and languor. It promotes buoyancy of spirit and feeling. It banishes these clogs upon pleasure which produce gloom. It drives away those distressing symptoms which rob us of happiness. It revives the physical energies by infusing new life and power into the system. It fortifies the system against the dangers of malaria, fluctuations of the temperature, changes in the climate, &c. In short, it prepares the system for the radical change to be wrought in its condition, and restores it to perfect health and natural vigor.

GOLDEN-TONGUE PARLOR ORGAN

IS ACKNOWLEDGED BY EMINENT MUSICIANS AND DISTINGUISHED MEN OF HONOR TO BE THE LEADING INSTRUMENT NOW IN USE —THEY SAY—

BEATTY & PLOTTS'

PARLOR ORGANS were awarded FIRST PREMIUM and DIPLOMA over Needham & Son's and J. Estey & Co's Organs at the Carbon County Fair, held at Lehighton, Pa., September, 1872.—Lehighton Weekly News, Oct. 5, 1872.

Committee.—Prof. Charles F. Horn, Prof. Wm. Moran, and H. D. Herdy, D. D., Hon. Z. Long, President.

St. Clair, Pa., Dec. 6, 1873.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS—Gents: I have received the Organ sent by your firm to me, and had it examined. It gives ample satisfaction.

JOHN SINEY.

Mahaney City, Pa., Oct. 16, 1873.

THE BEATTY & PLOTTS celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organ is by far the best Parlor Organ in use. I have carefully examined it, and find its tone, workmanship and durability to be the best I ever saw, and I can with pleasure recommend it to any in want of a first-class parlor organ. PROF. O. H. UNGER.

New Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 21, 1873.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS—Gents: Having had one of your Golden Tongue Parlor Organs, for six months past, I thought before recommending it, to give it a fair, square trial, and am happy to testify that it surpassed all that has been said or advertised about it. I have had Professors of music, and celebrated organists come and try it, and one and all say that it is one of the sweetest and best toned instruments in the market. It has taken the shine out of all others around here. I am perfectly satisfied with it. You may publish this if you see fit, as my organ can be tried by any one wishing to do so, in proof of what I say.

A. S. R. RICHARDS,

Late of the Tamaqua Courier, now at New Bethlehem, Pa.

BEATTY & PLOTTS Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are instruments that are winning for themselves a good reputation far and wide. The career of the firm is full of interest and shows what close application to one branch of business will do. Their energy, zeal and unyielding determination have enabled them to win.—Washington (N. J.) Star, March 27, 1874.

THE BEATTY & PLOTTS parlor organs are highly praised by good judges, for their sweetness of tone.—Pittston (Pa.) Comet Oct. 4, 1873.

Lawry's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

I have had BEATTY & PLOTTS' Organ since August 14th, 1872; it gives the highest satisfaction, and has proved all that it was recommended by the proprietors.

JOB HENRY.

The BEATTY & PLOTTS' celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organs are pronounced unsurpassed by any now before the musical world, by all who have had the pleasure to examine them. Testimony from all parts of the country speaks in favor of them, going to show their superiority over all others.—Ashland, Pa., Bulletin, Dec. 5, 1873.

Lawry's Station, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.

Beatty & Plotts' Parlor Organ, of N. J., seem to give full satisfaction to all purposes all over; and I must say by the experience I have of one of these organs—which I have had in my possession for nearly two years, and is in excellent condition—I would advise all who wish to get a good and substantial parlor organ to see the above named party, before buying anywhere else.

DAVID SCHEIRER,
Music Teache

Slatington, Pa., Feb. 6, 1874.

BEATTY & PLOTTS' Parlor Organ I like better than the Standard, and gives better satisfaction, as I find by experience in my profession.

PROF. FRANK MAYER.

Tamaqua, Pa., Dec. 16, 1873.

Those desiring a beautiful ornament for their homes, as well as an instrument of unsurpassed musical excellence will find it in the Beatty & Plotts Golden Tongue Parlor Organ. It gives entire satisfaction, and, in fact, is the leading instrument of the day.

JULIA C. WHITENIGHT, Organist.

MESSRS. BEATTY & PLOTTS, of Washington, New Jersey, are happy. They live in an atmosphere of music. Music soft and sweet, music strong and warlike, the shrill notes of the warrior, or the lute-like tones of love are thrilling and ever sounding in their establishment, and their famous Golden Tongue Organs are a household necessity all over.—Tamaqua (Pa.) Courier, March 28, 1874.

PARLOR ORGAN.—We call attention to the advertisement of Beatty & Plotts, manufacturers of Parlor Organs, in another part of this paper. These organs are fast superseding all others on account of their good qualities. A number of these instruments have been sold in this county, which give general satisfaction. These instruments are highly recommended by the best musicians in the country.—Sunbury American.

St. Clair, Pa., April 7, 1874.

TO DANIEL F. BEATTY:—I have received my organ all right. It pleases me very much. I never played an organ that gives me better satisfaction, the case looks splendid. I have a friend waiting for one. Please send me another No. 60 at once for him. He advocates your organs above all others. Enclosed please find check.

Very respectfully,

JOHN MILLS.

This unrivalled Medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

For FORTY YEARS it has proved its great valne in all diseases of the Liver, Bowels and Kidneys. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stiululating the torpid Liver and Bowels, and imparting new Life and Vigor to the whole system. Simmon's Liver Regulator is acknowledged to have no equal as a

LIVER MEDICINE.

It contains four medical elements, never united in the same happy proprtion in any other preparation, viz: a gentle Cathartic, a wonderful Tonic, an unexceptionable Alterative and a certain Corrective of all impurities of the body. Such signal success has attended its use, that it is now regarded as the

GREAT UNFAILING SPECIFIC

for Liver Complaint and prinful offspring thereof, to wit: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Billious attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, &c., &c.

Regulate the Liver and prevent

CHILLS AND FEVER.

PATENT

ARION

COMBINES MANNER'S FOUR

SIMPLIFYING PATENTS,

THE MOST VALUABLE PATENTS EVER USED IN PIANO-FORTES.

PATENT ARION.

REVERSED WOODEN AGRAFFE.

THE COMPOUND REST PLANK.

THE FULL IRON FRAME.

AND THE SUSTAINING IRON BAR.

A FEW REASONS

WHY THE

ARION PIANO

IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS:

The ARION PIANO-FORTE has greater power than any other Piano-Forte manufactured.

It will Stand in Tune Longer, and in its mechanical construction it is more perfect, and, therefore, more durable, than any instrument constructed in the usual modern style.

The arrangement of the Agraffe, the manner of stringing, the peculiar form and arrangement of the Iron Frame

SUPERCEDES ALL OTHERS

The use of a bar (which is a part of the Iron Frame on a line with the heavy steel stringing,) gives where most needed, and in this respect all other pianoes fail.

The construction of the WREST PLANK, into which the tuning Pins are inserted, is such that it is impossible for the pins to come loosened, or the Wrest Plank itself to split, as is too often the case in other Piano-Fortes.

The Extraordinary Evenness

throughout the scale, the excellent Singing Quality, the

LENGTH AND PURITY OF VIBRATION,

all go to prove what we claim, viz: that the

ARION PIANO-FORTE

Is the Best Instrument Manufactured.

ALSO

ESTEYS COTTAGE ORGANS,

WITH THE

VOX JUBILANT

AND

VOX HUMANA.

THE NE PLUS ULTRA OF

REED ORGANS,

universally acknowledged to be the BEST Organ made for Sunday Schools, Churches, Parlors and Lodges.

Having more power, with a sweeter tone, than any other Organ in the market notwithstanding the representations of agents interested in the sale of other Organs, we do fully warrant every Organ for the period of five years, (at our own expense.)
